ELECTION in Connecticut to-day. The probabilities are that the Prohibition vote will detract sufficiently from the Republican strength to encourage the Democracy with a belief that they have won a victory. When it comes to a national contest, however-a square struggle between the two tain to carry the State.

A PRIVATE LETTER from a citizen o Newark, New Jersey, now temporarily resident in Cuba, is printed in the Advertiser of that city, which gives some account of the progress of the revolution on the island. In one day, the 8th ult., thirteen Insurgents, the list being given and the estimate made that 10,000 hogsheads of sugar will be lost this season as the result. At this rate unless the march of the Patriot through the Cinco Villas is checked. the resources of the island will soon be entirely destroyed; but what is of greater interst to us as Americans, the commerce of the United States with Cuba will be seriously impaired. It has already suffered to a great extent, so much that a necessity apparently exists that something should be done to put an end to the devastation, to say nothing of the cruelty and barbarous acts of the Spaniards which attend this unfortunate war.

DR. NEWMAN began his series of lectures, describing his travels, at the Metropolitan church last night. Notwithstanding a severe cold, which somewhat impaired his delivery, he spoke for an hour and a half, commanding the attention of the large audience throughout. He began with an explanatory outline of the course of lectures which he intends to deliver, promising to give detailed sketches of his observations, and the result of his investigations into the religious and religious customs of mankind. He then proceeded with a description of Japanese farms, and an explanation of two of their religious creeds, which he did not finish, but will continue next Sunday night. There are few better the country, and when he has for a topic a class of subjects like those which form the besis of this series of lectures, he becomes

THE North Carolina Democrats are beginning to argue that the restrictions imposed by the law providing for a convention to revise the constitution of that State are illegal and inoperative. This is as we expected. The next step will be to repudiate, as far as possible, the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth amendments, and to reassert the doctrine of State rights. This deception is characteristic of the Southern Democracy, and is of a piece with their hollow pretence of and submission to the results of the war. They boasted while the convention bill was pending that they would so prescribe the powers of the convention that delegates to it would be prohibited from entertaining any proposition inimical to the reconstruction acts or the pledges of the Commonwealth when the State was readmitted into the Union. Now they are paving the way to do the very things they solemnly promised not to do. Weak kneed Republicans and doughfaces of all kinds in the North will do well to remember this forcible exemplification of the dishonesty of their Southern brethren. The man who puts his trust in the promises of a Southern Democrat, unless they are pledges to serve the interests of the Democratic party, is simply an idiot.

OUR Sunday cotemporary, the Hera'd, assumes to be amused at what it alleges is an attempt to discipline Mr. Speaker Blaine, and has something to say about "the organ of the Pinchbacks, Kelloggs, Claytons "and Caseys-of the carpet-baggers as a "class, and of their corrupt interests as a "policy." No doubt this is intended for fine writing and high-toned Conservative Democratic sentiment. But who stands behind it? Whose opinions does the Herquestions that the editor speaks for himself and appeals to the masses of the people. But the masses of the people will remember that the editor was a Union soldier-a good one, by the way-and a carpet-bag office holder under President Grant. They may use him and wheedle him; but they do it as they would with any other Northern doughface, and at the same time yield a generous recognition of consistency to his more manly and independent companions-in-arms who have since the war remained true to the principles for which they fought. Mr. Speaker Blaine will not feel very great pride over the fact that he is defended and applauded by such a man.

THE THIRD TERM AND THE POLITICIANS. The Chicago Tribune, under a happy inspiration, declares that "if a majority of the American people want a President " for a Third Term, there is no power any-"where to prevent them having him." Really! The American people ought to breathe freer after this. But the Tribune goes on to say that "the President cannot re-elect himself." This is absolutely refreshing. Ghost of Cæsar, thou art exorcised! Avaunt! Again, the Tribune says: "John Adams, John Quincy Adams and "Martin Van Buren were Presidents who, "while in office, tried to be elected a sec" ond term, but failed disastrously. Other "Presidents-Tyler, Polk, Fillmore, Bu-'chanan and Johnson-sought to be candidates for re-election but failed even to 'get nominated for a second term." Here is more comfort, solid chunks of it, unless one remembers that the Adamses, Van Buren, Tyler, Polk, Fillmore, Buchanan and Johnson were altogether of a different style than President Grant, who, according to the Tribune, will be deserted by the politicians and office-holders in the third year of his present term. There is no class of men, than the politicians, says the Tribune, who "are better skilled in weighing the possibilities of elections." Sad as it may seem, we are impelled to expose the fallacy of this assumption by referring the Tribune to the experience of 1872. The politicians began at Cincinnati, and ended at Baltimore, a series of efforts to lead the people away from the paths of principle, and the result was their utter defeat in the November election.

The Philadelphia convention had but a small number of office-holders in its membership, or politicians, and it must be admitted that those who were delegates were patriotic enough not to abandon principle for policy's sake. If they had been political deserters, as their opponents at Cincinnati and Baltimore were, it would not have mattered who they selected for a candidate. their unanimous condemnation even by the people would have repudiated their action. Horace Greeley was well known, more prominently known than any other man in the country, as an Abolitionist and as a determined supporter of extreme Republicanism. For this reason the politicians, the mongrel combination of disappointed and soreheaded spirits in the Re publican ranks known as Liberal Republicans with the faint-hearted Democrats. leading parties—the Republicans are cer- took him up for policy's sake and made him their candidate. The Democrats knew they could not win on a square, fair, Democratic platform, and they hoped by compremising with the Republican apostates to e able to carry their ticket. Gen. Grant, on the contrary, was known as an antibellum Democrat, but as a man who had loved and served his country, who had large sugar estates were destroyed by the been magnanimous to his country's foes when in the hour of victory his word would have been sufficient to consign them to cruel and infamous punishment, and when he stood in the breach to defend the rebels against the maiignant designs of a powerful national administration. At the same time he was made the candidate for a party acknowledged to be the exponent of undying principles, and became the standard-bearer of thousands of followers who tied their faith unyieldingly to those principles. The politicians, the political newspapers and, in short, all the elements of discord which could be invoked were brought to bear in opposition to him. Certain public journals, formerly acknowledged to be influential, and which were influential so long as they remained true to estab-in that opposition. But in the end not a single vote was cast in the Electoral College for their candidate, and "Mr." Grant was re elected almost without opposition. These are historical facts: undeniable facts. They teach a lesson, the lesson of experience. But plainer than anything else, they prove that the politicians' cry against the mere shadowy possibility of a Third Term for President Grant is sheer nonsense. As the Tribune says, the people will settle this matter for themselves; but we add that mere politicians are false prophets. It is true that the office-holders may be selfish and interested, may resort to doubtful subterfuges to retain their places, and may be superservice.

the opponents of the Republican party. The recent debates in the United States Senate, and the views expressed by the newly-elected Demdescriptive speakers than Dr. Newman in | may resort to doubtful subterfuges to retain their places, and may be superserviceable, at times, in the defence of the appointing power; but behind all this resides the uncrring instinct of the masses and the fortuitous promptings of the people, which never fails to so shape public affairs as to eventually secure the greatest good to the greatest number. If, in the realization of this, Presidefft Grant shall be re-elected, who will object? And if some other man shall be chosen, no citizen who has any regard for the maintenance of a popular form of government will assert a dissenting voice. But the

'politicians" have nothing to do with it. CONVERTS TO THE CATHOLIC CHURCH Referring to the annual confirmations at this time by the Most Rev. Archbishop Bayley himself a convert, we are led to believe it would be an interesting study to ascertain from what denominations of professing Christians the large number of converts to the Catholic Church in this country have been received. The charge has frequently been made that the Protestant Episcopal, being so nearly allied to the Catholic Church, furnishes the greatest percentage. This, however, is a mistake. The fact that in the Protestant Episcopal Church the broadest latitude is given to all schools of thought, from the ultra low churchman to the extreme ritualist, affords a reasonable presumption that a majority of converts would not be from this source. Statistics will sustain this presumption and demonstrate that the various Protestant denominations each furpish at least as many, if not more, converts than the Protestant Episcopal Church. Regardless, however, of the source whence they come, the fact that they are very numerous i none the less significant. As impartial judges of passing events we may doubtless discover to some extent the cause of this in the persecution of the Catholic Church, since men, heretofore ignorant or listless respecting her doctrines or alleged authority, are almost unconsciously led to study ber history and examine her claims. Catholics believe that when a Protestant, putting ald reflect, or to whom does it appeal? Of away his prejudices, is willing to inspect the course, it will be easy to reply to these ground of Catholic fath, the conversion of that man is more than half secured. The cause of increased interest and conversion, however, is not solely external. From the Church itself ithere is an influence which commands the respect, if it does not obtain the love and loyalty, of Christians in every denomination. So true is this that doubtless no respectable publisher in the land could now be induced to purchase the manuscript of such a army experience, he "stepped down and | work as the "Escaped Nun." The day for catch-penny literature of this character is happily passed. From the pulpit and press, where only a few years ago the most bitter language was used respecting the Catholic Church, now a dignified allence or words of feeble praise prevail. The more thoughtful Protestants smypathize with the Church in her present persecutions, because they see that it is not Rome merely that is attacked, but Christianity itself. In conclusion we give an extract from a sermon recently delivered in the Presbyterian church at Oakland, California, by the unto death during the war; but while he | Rev. Mr. Hamilton, as illustrating the change

"But we are compelled to own that this old Mother Church shows an astonishing vitality. More than half of Christendom still bows at her altars. The common people cling to her robes. Through pitliess storms that leave the seats in our Protestant sanctuaries nearly vacant, we eet them crowding to our worship, morning, noon and night. Wherever a few of her children make their homes, a cross surmounted church will soon them crowding to our worship, morning, noon and night. Wherever a few of her children make their homes, a cross-surmounted church will soon be seen. She builds wisely to meet conveniones among the poor communities, to win asthetic culture wherever wealth creates such a taste to be piezsed. And her people pay for her churches, Her missionaries are also crowding to every heathen country, and among the great populations of India and China number their converts by scores for every one that Protestaus can count as the fruits of their labors. No degree of possible self-sacrifice demanded by their work turns them back. No danger appalls them. Wherever she gains a foothold she speedily credit the university, the college and the seminary, as well as the church, and wins thousands of the sons and daughters of other religions, and even of Protestants, by the superior appliances with which she furnishes them. And close by the side of her school and church you will soon see her asylum for indigence and misfortune spring up. She is also a gentle and tireless nurse of human pain. Where the pestilence mows its deadliest swarth of human lives, there you will see her Sisters of Mercy and father confessors, never shrinking from the touch of the plague, and never leaving the field or remitting their ministries of care, till the scourge departs or death tile shearings them. And many a good priest has evilced his sincertity, as well as his courage, by going into the battle-field where death fell the thickest, that he might give the comforts and hopes of his religion to the dying.

"We sometimes hear it said that the whole system of Romaniem is a shell without a heart, substance or spiritual life, that the masses are diped by its false pretences, but its leaders know it is hollow. We shall never deal wisely with the evils in any great power which millions of human hearts love and trust, and find comfort in until we learn to do it justice. We know that men do not endure half a century of voluntary men do not endure half a century of voluntary pain and serifice for what is in their own eyes a transparent sham. Millions of thirsty souls, generation after generation, do not rush to a fountain which has long ago run dry. When human hearts are seeking eternal life they do not hold it so cheep as to take up with a patent-counterfeit. Catholics find some deepest want of soul mst in their Church, or they would turnaway from her as a islse mother.

The collection is valued at ninety thousand dollars, and contains many important works by the best known artists of the American, English, French, German, Dutch and Austrian schools. In the collection are Jerome Thompson's original "Old Oaken Bucket," and "Home, Sweet Home," a rare old picture by Gerard Douw, Merle's, Bailly's, Boutabou's, Verbeckhoeven's, Col's, Sell's, Koek Koek's, Robbe's, Shayer's, and works of numerous other artists of equal reputation. As this will be followed by Col. Chapman's sale, which is equally important, and well worth seeing, lovers of art throughout the United States will have the greatest opportunity presented in many years for securing really first-class pictures at whatever the market value may be. Both these sales are without reserve and guaranteed as represented in the catalogue, both by the Messrs. Leavitts and the owners. Third Term. (Frem the Valley Virginian.)

The grim phantom of a military dictator still haunts the imaginations of the Democratic writers and speakers. They have argued themselves into the belief that General Grant is anxious for an election to the Presidency for a third term, and because he will not deny the existence of such a desire, or affirm it, they are lashing themselves into a fury of excitement over the uncertainty that hovers over the question. If the President had nothing to do but to study the gratification of the whims of the "Independent" press and the puppet politicians who follow its lead and echo its sayings, he might indulge in a few brief remarks on the subject, to rescue them from their self-inflicted torture. But being engaged with more important matters, he has permitted them to have their own opinions and continue their speculations.

There has been nothing that the President has said or done that can be properly construed to favor the idea of a third term. marks have fallen from him in relation to publie questions and the condition of the country that might be fairly interpreted to mean that he was not ambitious for the responsibilities and cares of the Presidency for a longer period than that embraced in his present term. Whether he wishes to stand before the Amer-Whether he wishes to stand before the American people for a second indorsement or not, after the malicious abuse that has been heaped upon him by his political opponents, and the sienders that have been flooded over the country through the "Independent" press, is not a matter of any great moment. If he did, it would, it is true, be a little out of the old way of doing business, but as there is nothing in the Constitution or the laws inhibiting it and lished policy and principle, were enlisted the Constitution or the laws inhibiting it, and it being a question purely for the people to de-termine and deal with, there could not possi-bly be any great crime attached to it. If his only ce any great crime attached to it. In his party choses to nominate him, and the people desire to elect him, where could be the harm? This is a government of the people and for the people, and if, in the exercise of their rights, they should see proper to call General Grant to the Presidency a third time, we cannot understand how that fact would change the character of our institutions. Whatever would be acter of our institutions. Whatever would be the effect, it would be the result of the action of those who have the right to bring it about, and who are the most interested. One thing is certain, the interests of the country will require a firm will and a steady nerve at the helm of the Government, and a mind that is fully alive to the dangerous plottings of ocratic Senators, are sufficient to arouse the apprehensions of the country. The securement of good government, the preservation of peace, and the protection of all the rights of citizenship, as now guaranteed, imperatively demand the continuance of the Republican party in power, and that this will be the case we have not the shadow of a doubt. Whether it will be the desire of that party that General Grant should lead them in the contest of 1878 is yet to be determined. Should be be nominated, his election would be as certain as any future
